December 2nd

THE MAGIC SWORD (Color) 1962

Kick off the holiday season with this magical movie. Lodac the Wizard (Basil Rathbone) abducts Princess Helene (Anne Helm). Young Sir George (Gary Lockwood) vows to rescue the fair maiden and win her heart...with a little help from his Mom, a bumbling witch played by the great Estelle Winwood. This movie proves Unicorns do exist!

December 9th

A CELEBRATION OF CHRISTMAS TV (B&W)

Beatniks Bird and Zelda head to the rooftop on the lookout for Santa, and to tune the antenna for some special Christmas television specials from the 50's and 60's. Will "Ozzie and Harriet" get their shopping done, and put up the tree and holiday lights before Christmas Eve? Will "The Beverly Hillbillies" enjoy their new boat and television from Mr. Drysdale? Find out while you heat up your TV dinner!

December 16th

SCROOGE (B&W) 1935

This 1935 British version of the Dickens classic stars Seymour Hicks as Ebenezer Scrooge, the miser who hates Christmas - only to be visited by the ghosts of Christmas past, present, and future. This is the first sound version of "A Christmas Carol" that will surely get you in the spirit. Pass the eggnog!

December 23rd

SANTA CLAUS CONQUERS THE MARTINS (COLOR) 1964

This is a "Bird" family tradition! Watch as John Call plays Santa in this science fiction comedy. Popular singer Pia Zadora plays one of the children kidnapped to Mars with jolly old Saint Nick. Will they bring happiness to the children of Mars? Will they make their way back to earth in time for December 25th? By the end, Music Director Milton DeLugg will have you singing, "Hooray For Santy-Claus!"

December 30th

PLAN NINE FROM OUTER SPACE (B&W) 1959

Some say this is the best of the worst! Director Ed Wood brings Bela Lugosi to the screen in his last screen appearance as poorly dressed (and rather rude) aliens bring a "doomsday" machine to earth in their attempt to take over. Psychic "Criswell" narrates the movie that stars Lyle Talbot, and then horror movie hostess Elvira. Top pilot (Gregory Walcott) flies in to save the day, the planet, and this movie!
